Water Condition Improved.

The monthly analysis of the water at the pumping station at Mansfield, made by State Chemist H. W. Conn. is as follows: "This water is highly colored and has an earthy odor; otherwise it is good physically. The mineral matter is low and it is soft. The figures for organic constituents are all low and the chlorine is normal. The bacteria are moderate in number. No typical colon was isolated, although organisms having most of the colon characters were found. At the present time the water seems to be in better condition than is usual, and is apparently sale for use."
